SENATE MAY KILL "BLUE TAG" PLAN

Opposition Growing in Upper House to Section 7 of Post-office Appropriation Bill.

By JOSEPH P. ANNIN.

One of the bitterest legislative fights of the present session will commence in the Senate the last of this month when Section 7 of the Postoffice appropriation bill, as passed by the House and reported out by the Senate Committee, is taken up.

Section 7 seeks to extend without limitation, the authority of the Postoffice Department to ship magazines and periodicals by freight. Under existing law, enacted in 1912, the department is prohibited from extending this system beyond certain restricted limits.

The tremendous personal and political power which would thus be placed in the office of the Postmaster General, through his ability to discriminate for and against magazines and periodicals, shipping friendly publications by fast mail, and "blue tagging" or sending by freight, publications of unfriendly views, is the basis of the opposition.

Would Encourage Discrimination.

While it is admitted that the department might effect a saving through the unrestricted extension of the "blue tag" system, it is pointed out that the Postmaster General would have life and death power over hundreds of publications to which the country looks for its views on public questions.

The fight on section 7 will come up on an amendment offered by Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, striking out the section. "I expect to get to my amendment about June 5," Senator Ashurst said yesterday. "I find that a great deal of work has been done on the other side, but that still the presentation of the argument against Section 7 is making many converts."

"In my motion to strike out Section 7, I intend no reflection upon the Postmaster General, for whom I have the highest regard, but I do not believe any man, however wise, just, fair and virtuous, should be clothed with this immense power of 'blue tagging' any particular publication, thereby possibly annihilating the publication, or at least reducing its prestige and revenues."

Could Be Used in Campaign.

It may readily be comprehended that if permitted in the present bill, thus becoming operative early in the forthcoming campaign, this power might very easily be made to operate against various candidates. This will be pointed out in debate and instances will be quoted where certain publications for political reasons have been given preference in the matter of "blue tagging."

The following resolutions, adopted by the Periodical Publishers' Association, were placed in the Record yesterday in the Senate. Copies have been sent to all Senators:

"Resolved, That the members of the Periodical Publishers' Association of America hereby protest against the passage of Section 7 of the Postoffice Appropriation Bill, in view of the fact that the serious difficulties and delays now suffered under the so-called blue tag system, which at the present time is operative in only a limited section of the country, and only applies to certain publications, would be vastly increased by the extension of the territory covered by it and by the inclusion of additional classes of publications; and

"Further, That no public official of the department should be given such discriminating power over private business as will enable him, or it, to place one publication at such disadvantage with another as will be of incalculable injury to the publication, against which such discrimination is made."

The following is an excerpt from the report of the Senate Postoffice Committee, in July, 1912, when the existing limitation was placed on the use of the "blue tag" system:

"We are of the opinion that the freight service involves difficulties which the department did not foresee, and we are convinced that it is absolutely impossible for any official to declare that one periodical shall go by freight and its rival shall go by mail train, without doing irreparable injury in many instances. We do not believe that any man should be permitted to exercise the discretionary power over private business which this 'blue-tag' service confers upon the Postmaster General."

NORTH SEA ENCOUNTER MAY BOOST NAVY BILL

More Heavily Armored Ships Likely to Be Added to Program Before Congress.

The addition of two or more super-Dreadnoughts to the building program for next year, probable further additions to the amount carried for aviation, and possibly a requirement that the Navy Department enter into comprehensive experiments with dirigibles, are some of the changes which may be made in the navy appropriation bill, partially at least, as a result of the lessons drawn from the big naval battle in the North Sea, off Jutland, last Wednesday.

The Senate naval affairs committee will receive the House bill on Monday. Prior to the big naval engagement, a majority of the committee had reached a virtual agreement to extend the building program to cover two super-Dreadnoughts and one additional battle cruiser. It would not be surprising, in view of the recent demonstration of the basic worth of heavily armored ships, if more than two Dreadnoughts were determined upon.

Senator Tillman, chairman of the naval affairs committee, today announced himself as in favor of a building program calling for eight capital ships—two Dreadnoughts and six battle cruisers. The navy bill as it passed the House provides five battle cruisers and no Dreadnoughts, Senator Tillman said.

"My mind is made up this far—I believe the House bill should be materially enlarged and I believe the Senate does so," Representative Scully, of New Jersey, one of the "big navy" Democrats, stated. "I should say that while the fighting contentions that the light battle cruisers is very important, the super-Dreadnought, with its heavy armor and big guns still remains the main fighting unit."

Representative Padgett, chairman of the House naval affairs committee, said he preferred to await an official information before venturing any deductions.

"JEFF" DAVIS HONORED.

Aswell Declares Confederate Leader Was "Original Preparedness Man."

Jefferson Davis was the "original preparedness man," according to Representative Aswell, of Louisiana, who was one of the speakers in eulogizing the late leader of the Confederacy in the House yesterday. Representative Kincaid, of Kentucky, who represents the district where Davis was born, also spoke.

"Davis was the original 'preparedness' man, declaring in Congress in 1846, when trouble with Mexico was imminent, 'We need a little better preparation for hostilities before too much bragging is indulged in,'" said Representative Aswell.
